The lecture will focus on understanding black-white disparities in the U.S labor market. It will present basic facts about current disparities and long-run trends. It will also discuss how economists understand and test for discrimination in the labor market.