Dr. Voena will discuss research showing that family decision making is a crucial determinant of economic behavior and that better understanding it can help us design more effective policies.